PHL 201/History of Ancient Philosophy

Sec. 01 (80654) Staff 3:30-4:50PM MR

Prerequisite: One course in philosophy or permission of instructor

This is a survey course on Plato and Aristotle. In order to place these two philosophers within their historical context, we shall begin by exploring the thought of the Pre-Socratic Philosophers (Parmenides, Zeno, Anaxagoras and Democritus) and the Sophists (Gorgias and Protagoras). The focus of the course shall be on epistemology, metaphysics and psychology. For Plato, we shall read two or three of the early dialogues (including the Euthyphro), both the Meno and the Phaedo, and parts of the Republic. We shall also look at Plato’s own criticism of the theory of the Forms in the Parmenides. For Aristotle, we shall read some of the organon, including parts of the Categories and the Posterior Analytics. These works provide the basis for Aristotle’s own rejection of the theory of Forms and they also introduce us to his conception of “scientific knowledge”. We shall read substantial selections from three of Aristotle’s more prominent works: the Nicomachean Ethics, the Physics, and On the Soul. (LL: World Views & Way of Knowing, Writing Intensive)

REL 333/Scripture in Context  Sec.01 (80803) Hlubik 2:00-3:20PM MR

(see HIS/CLS 333)

Scripture in Context investigates the books of the Hebrew Bible (Christian Old Testament) using contemporary historical critical, cultural, archeological, literary and other academic tools of analysis in order to provide students with a deeper appreciation of the meaning of these texts. We will examine the possible meanings which these texts had in their original written or oral forms, and how they were reinterpreted and re-edited to reflect new meanings they took on as time went on, and finally how their meanings changed when they were formed into the canons of Holy Scriptures for Jews and Christians. The course will challenge traditionally held views in the Judeo-Christian tradition that these writings are always inerrant, applicable to daily living, easy to understand, and the direct words of God.

CLS 370/Special Topic: Democracy in the Greek Era

Sec.02 (82294) Dakin 11:00-12:20PM TF
Since antiquity, Greek democracy has bequeathed to the world a political legacy that is revered to such an extent that almost any non-democratic form of government is dismissed and delegitimized. A recent Princeton University study, however, claims that America is no longer a democracy, but an oligarchy (rule of the few). These findings hint at the current issues surrounding scholarship on ancient Greek democracy and illustrate the “expandable” meaning of democracy, a term that has been subject to so many controversies, manipulations, inappropriate usages, and modifications throughout the ages.

This course seeks to engage with a range of modern and ancient literature (in translation), as well as archaeological evidence, to reveal and answer vital questions about the establishment, the practice, and the longevity of democracy in the Greek world. It is hoped that students will gain a wider vantage point from which to examine and access their own society and constitution.
